7. A rental car driver is checked. What counts as vehicle registration?
8. Define: What four documents must you carry while driving?
9. Define: Why is vehicle registration needed?
10. Define: What does insurance certificate prove?

Answer Key

1. C) Medical certificate — Medical certificate is only required if you have specific health conditions.
2. B) Vehicle ownership and safety compliance — Registration certifies ownership and that the vehicle meets roadworthiness standards.
3. C) No — it is legally required — Insurance is mandatory for all drivers and vehicles on public roads.
4. B) No, you must carry them — You must have documents accessible and present them immediately on demand.
5. The driver is missing the insurance certificate (third-party proof). This is a violation of traffic law in most countries. The officer may issue a fine and the vehicle may be impounded.
6. No — expired documents are invalid. Even if the license was renewed, the old one must be replaced. The driver must renew all expired documents before operating.
7. The rental agreement serves as proof of authorization to use the vehicle. The insurance certificate must cover the rental specifically. The driver's own license and ID are also required.
8. License, vehicle registration, insurance certificate, and personal ID.
9. Proves vehicle ownership and that it meets safety and emissions standards.
10. That liability and third-party damage coverage is active.
